What is external?

In the Ministry of Education, the external form is considered an individual training form, in which the curriculum and all programs are studied independently, and according to the results, the student as well as all the diaries is allowed to session, state or final certification.

All educational institutions that have accreditation of a state sample, as an option - schools, colleges, universities can provide such a form of training.

If we speak in a simple language, secondary education can be obtained without visiting the school, and the program of two classes go over one year. The same applies to higher education, for which the Externate system also provides.

According to the law, namely, the provisions "On obtaining general education in the form of external" Age restrictions are missing for education, and the external can be completed even to primary school, which is to talk about the higher educational institution.

Training features on external

Study at the University of Exteronic has its own characteristics, and in its structure is radically different from day or absentee training.

First, for one academic year, you can successfully undergo a training program at once several courses, as a rule, two.

Secondly, external excludes visiting lectures, and the learning process completely imposes on the shoulders and under the responsibility of the student.

Thirdly, the schedule for the completion of the final certification is individual, so it is not necessary to expect the coming session at all.

And last: the schedule of individual consultations is determined to which the student must be necessarily.

This control is that while studying, he is engaged in the development of new knowledge, and did not find an official reason for absenteeism.

Advantages and disadvantages of learning form - External

Opinions about this form of training are divergent: some students believe that there is a curriculum and should not overload yourself to excess information; But others are confident that five years

"Source Pants" at the university simply makes no sense.

Anyway, external has its advantages and disadvantages, which are important not to forget when choosing precisely this form of training.

Benefits:

The appearance of additional free time;

A unique opportunity to study on an individual program;

Lack of financial costs;

Obtaining a diploma ahead of the deadline;

Correction of his routine of the day.

There are devices in this system and their drawbacks that often instill doubts about their desire to learn external:

Special notification in a diploma about the externate passed;

The quality of learning is reduced;

The impossibility of independent learning;

Imperfect knowledge in the future profession.

That is why it is so important to timely decide on the choice, so that then it is finally not to lose the opportunity to get such a desired higher education and prospects that are accompanied by it.

How to learn external?

Training externally can begin not only in the first year of the university, but also on the next.

It happens at about when the student understands that the part of the parties level and does not receive new useful information from the lecture.

There is a desire to learn external and for other reasons, as an option - family circumstances, according to health, according to personal will and as an alternative to the irrespective prospects.

First of all, a student must write a corresponding statement in the dean, which will be considered individually.

In the case of a positive response, he receives his personal curriculum, as well as a list of basic and additional issues, which will continue to undergo a control assessment of the knowledge gained.

Depending on the program provided by the educational process, lecture classes can also be provided, but again everything is individually.

There are those students who do not attend theoretical classes, but they appear regularly.

If the student chose the training external, then it should understand that the study will not go to samothek, and the control of teachers will also be present.

So the curriculum provides for individual advice, allowing the student to ask all the necessary and disturbing questions.

Verification of knowledge is carried out by passing abstracts, independent, practical and laboratory work, and after the protection of the thesis, the graduate finally receives a cherished document of the state sample.
